Will South Korea capture 30 percent of ESS market by 2036?

This was a heavy hit for the energy industry, but developments of safer technology and renewed state support have recently given new life to the domestic ESS market. According to South Korea's "10th Basic Plan for Electricity Supply and Demand," the government aims to capture over 30 percent of the global ESS market by 2036.

Does Korea have a market for energy storage systems?

Korea is positioning itself to claim a significant share of the worldwide market for Energy Storage Systems.

Will South Korea jump-start the ESS industry by 2036?

In a bold move to join the ranks of the United States and China as leaders in the ESS sector, South Korea is targeting a 35% stake in the burgeoning global ESS market by 2036, with the intent to jump-start its domestic ESS industry, which is currently experiencing a lull.

Are South Korean companies investing in energy storage systems?

Less than a decade ago, South Korean companies held over half of the global energy storage system (ESS) market with the rushed promise of helping secure a more sustainable energy future. However, a string of ESS-related fires and a lack of infrastructure had dampened investments in this market.

Which energy storage solutions are used in South Korea?

In South Korea, various energy storage solutions are used, including pumped hydro, electrochemical batteries, and others. Depending on the energy storage technology and delivery characteristics, an ESS can serve many roles in the electricity market.

What is South Korea's 'basic plan for long-term electricity supply & demand'?

In January 2023, South Korea, under a new government, unveiled its biennial master plan, officially known as the "Basic Plan for Long-Term Electricity Supply and Demand" (10th edition). This strategic blueprint sets ambitious targets for renewable energy, aiming for a 21.6% share by 2030 and a more substantial 30.6% by 2036.
